WOMEN'S SMOKING BITTERLY ASSAILED

Sixty-Year-Old Vamp, Puffing Cigarette, Shocked Doctor, He Tells National Council

SHE HAD 'GOO-GOO' EYES

Bitter criticism of the sex freedom which permits women to smoke was made at today's meeting of the National Council of Women when their resolutions committee submitted a measure asking for more strict enforcement of laws forbidding sale of tobacco to minors.

Another clause in this resolution, later unanimously passed by the council, representing 10,000,000 women of the Nation, asked for the promotion of better dress for women as an influence on their morals and health.

"One sees beautiful young women in hotel dining rooms, nonchalantly lighting cigarettes and as nonchalantly exhaling," Mrs. Frances E. Burns, of St. Louis, Mich., said when the resolution was offered for action.

"It is a most deplorable condition which detracts from womanly appeal and is, in addition, injurious to the health. Smoking is not confined to young and single women. Many matrons smoke, even prospective mothers who, by their addition to the tobacco habit, injure the health of the unborn child. And there are many mothers who continue smoking after the birth of the baby, injuring the child's health."

Enforcement of laws prohibiting sale of tobacco to minors should not be confined to them, but extended to women. I am astounded and too full to express my opinion of the fact a transcontinental railroad recently opened smoking compartments exclusively for the use of women.

Horrified to See Women Smoking
Mrs. Burns related how, when she had a recent visit to Louisville, Ky., she was horrified to see young women with cigarettes between their lips, driving their automobiles through the streets.

"Even more disgusting than smoking among young women," Dr. K. Walter Barrett, of Alexandria, Va., added, "is to see a sixty-year-old woman smoking and exuding long, gray, wispy clouds of smoke."

The special train stopped at what is known as a station but is known to railroad men as the "yardmaster's office," where it will be met at the West Philadelphia Station by Major Barclay Warrenton and an escort of city police.

Foch Sends Message to His Philadelphia Hosts

"It is with great pleasure that I look forward to visiting the city of Philadelphia. For your city gave to the world Benjamin Franklin, philosopher and diplomat, whose name is revered by every Frenchman. And the name of your city stands for something which every sensible-minded man desires to represent throughout the world today—Brotherly Love. The war is over. The victory is ours. Let us show our moral strength by maintaining an inviolable peace, and with that peace a spirit of Brotherly Love. I salute Philadelphia, the cradle of American liberty, the city which has striven to live up to the meaning of its name."

5 JURORS PICKED TO TRY ARBUCKLE

Panel Probably Will Not Be Completed Before Next Tuesday

MISSING WITNESS FOUND

By the Associated Press
San Francisco, Nov. 15.—Twelve veniremen examined and five jurors accepted tentatively, one of them a woman, was the situation at the opening of the second day of the trial of Miss Virginia Rappe, here today on a manslaughter charge.

Arbuckle went on trial yesterday on charges connected with the death of Miss Virginia Rappe, a film actress, whose demise followed a party in Arbuckle's room at the Hotel St. Francis here, last September.

The five jurors so far seated, however, still are subject to per-emptory challenge.

Exhaustive interrogation to which veniremen are being subjected indicates that the jury probably will not be completed before next Tuesday. Lack of interest in the tedious routine of picking a jury is thought to be responsible for the absence at the opening of Arbuckle's trial of the thirteenth juror, who should have appeared at the hearing, although all places in the courtroom were taken yesterday.

A special police guard is on duty in anticipation of a scramble for seats when the taking of testimony is started.

The first day's session was devoid of interest except an intimation in court by Gavin McNab, chief of counsel for the defense, that District Attorney Matthew Brady had threatened to send to jail some witnesses if they refused to make certain statements. McNab added that he would produce seven witnesses to prove his assertion.

"If you do," retorted Brady, "I will resign."

Apparently demoralized, the film comedian sat in silence while lawyers questioned prospective jurors.

GARMENT WORKERS PICKET 3000 NEW YORK SHOPS

Both Union Heads and Manufacturers Confident They Will Win
New York, Nov. 15.—(By A. P.)—Picketing of 3000 garment shops by striking workers began today. Every picket was provided with a card of instructions from the union warning against engaging in arguments or making a disturbance.

The manufacturers declared that more than 40 per cent of their workers, the most efficient operatives, had remained at work, but the union leaders asserted that the strike had started a 100 per cent success.

Some of the smaller manufacturers, the union men said, had already entered into negotiations with the workers and work would be resumed in those shops as soon as agreements were signed.

The greatest success of the strike, said the manufacturers, was that their forces would be working at 60 per cent of normal within a few days. They declared that they would produce seven million shirts in the next few days, and that the forty-nine-hour week as essential to the reduction of prices on women's clothing.

PRESBYTERIANS INCREASE CHURCH BUDGET $2,000,000

Total for Next Year Fixed by Committee at $14,500,000
Atlantic City, Nov. 15.—The total budget for the financial administration in the coming year of the Presbyterian Church, as finally framed by the Executive Committee which met at its sessions here this afternoon, aggregates $14,500,000, an increase of exactly $2,000,000 over last year.

A special increase appears in the appropriation for foreign mission work, nearly $1,000,000, which is explained in the plan to increase the number of missionaries from 1000 to 1200 the coming year, and to encourage activity in Cebu-Slavakia, where the new republic has decided to establish a national church. The appropriation for women's missionary work is reduced $200,000. A new item appears of $8000 for army chaplains.

Decision was reached after a conference with a delegation of secretaries from the international headquarters of the Y. M. C. A. in New York, to have the church organizations, where practical, co-operate with the association in preventing overlapping of effort in reaching young men.

SUBMARINE ISSUE LIKELY TO BE MET WITH COMPROMISE

England's Proximity to Europe Makes Her Oppose Hughes' Allotment of Undersea Craft

SCRAPPING OF BIG SHIPS REDUCES DEFENSIVE NEEDS

By CLINTON W. GILBERT
Staff Correspondent Evening Public Ledger
Copyright, 1921, by Public Ledger Company
Washington, Nov. 15.—Great Britain, through Arthur James Balfour, head of the British delegation to the Conference, has unreservedly accepted the American proposal for the limitation of naval armament.

To the British acceptance Mr. Balfour attached no conditions. He "threw out the suggestion" that too large a tonnage was allowed in Mr. Hughes' plan for submarines, but by this he did not mean that, unless the submarine tonnage was reduced, Great Britain would withhold her approval.

The submarine question was treated as a detail to be worked out in committee as the naval plan is perfected.

Along with this suggestion that the tonnage of undersea craft be further limited, came a further suggestion, much less stressed, that submarines be limited to defensive purposes and the building of large cruising submarines whose sole use could be attack be forbidden.

This remark of Mr. Balfour's was loudly applauded by his auditors. Obviously its omission from the American plan, whose purpose was to limit navies to defensive uses, was an oversight.

Don't Ask Abolition
The submarine, Mr. Balfour said, was a defensive weapon, for the weak and could not properly be abolished. He did not ask its abolition. All he suggested was that too large a tonnage had been allowed in the American plan, which, he remarked, permitted more submarines than any country now had.

The interests of this country and England differ widely with regard to submarines. The United States, having a long coast line, might require many submarines for defense and would not be subject to attack by hostile submarines, especially if undersea cruisers be forbidden.

Great Britain, on the other hand, lying near the continent of Europe, is subject to attack by submarines of small radius, which are in fact the defensive craft of continental navies. During the last war she was seriously menaced with starvation by the German undersea raiders.

But if Mr. Hughes' theory is correct, that navies under his plan are shorn of their offensive power, then fewer submarines are needed for defense and a large fleet of defensive submarines is not necessary.

At any rate, the submarine question has to be considered from the point of view of a people located as the British are, against whom the defensive submarine can be used offensively. No doubt a compromise will be reached between the American and the British position.

NEW EPOCH IN HISTORY

"If the 11th of November in the minds of the allied and associated Powers, is the minds perhaps not less of all the neutrals—if that is a date important of great historic interest, I think November 12 will also prove to be an anniversary well remembered and thought of in a grateful spirit by those who in the future shall look back upon the arduous struggle now being made by the civilized nations of the world, not merely to restore pre-war conditions, but to see that war conditions shall never again exist."

NOCTURNAL CALLER SHOTS PHYSICIAN

Lewistown, Pa., Nov. 15.—Mystery surrounds the shooting here early today of Dr. F. W. Black, chief surgeon and chief of staff of the Lewistown Hospital, which occurred following a meeting of the trustees of that institution which adjourned after midnight.

Dr. Black was awakened and went downstairs to answer a call at the night bell. He was passing through the front office when a man leaped from the rear office and fired.

A 32-caliber revolver bullet penetrated the doctor's left side, passed through the abdomen and imbedded itself in a desk. Only one shot was fired. The assailant escaped without being recognized. Dr. Black has a fighting chance of recovery.

The Board of Trustees of the Lewistown Hospital recently reorganized its medical and surgical staff, dismissing some of the physicians and surgeons who had been with the institution since its organization, thirteen years ago.

Dr. Black, who came here from Philadelphia a few months ago, was put in charge of the hospital and is thought to have been in the building for some time, the work of some crank in connection with the agitation resulting.

Dr. Black served as a colonel in the World War, being affiliated with the British, Italian and American armies.

Patrolman's Claim of Identification Like Bombshell

Lewistown, Pa., Nov. 15.—A dramatic and positive identification of Lester Newhall as the man who ran away from the place where Josephine Howard was shot and killed was the Commonwealth's big card today that took the defense entirely by surprise.

Trable Patrolman John J. Curry, who the witness who exhaled the bomb for the prosecution. Looking at Newhall, whose trial began yesterday before Judge Guigley, Curry said:

"I swear that it is the man I saw running. He had his cap in his hand and I had a good look at his face."

A major part of the defense was to be built around the supposed fact that the Commonwealth could produce no one who saw Newhall at or near Eighteenth and Cherry streets, where the young girl was slain.

A high point of interest before Curry's testimony was the statement that he had his arm around Miss Howard's waist and was about to kiss her when he heard two shots and the girl died in his arms.

Sullivan, whose home is in Northampton, Mass., was escorting Miss Howard to her home at 408 North Eighteenth street on the night of May 28. They had dined in a hall at Nineteenth and Market streets.

Japan's Position Cleared

What is true of France in Europe is even more true of Japan in Asia. Limitation of naval armament confirms Japan's position as the supreme power in the Far East. If you add to her being unassailable navally by any one power the fact that she possesses the sole large and effective army in the East, you find her in a position of dominance in Asia like that of the United States in the Western Hemisphere.

Balfour Calls Hughes Plan Greatest Arms Conception

Britain's Spokesman Applauds Proposal for World Reconstruction, and Suggests Modifications

Washington, Nov. 15.—Following is the text of Arthur J. Balfour's speech, expressing Great Britain's attitude toward Secretary Hughes' naval disarmament proposals:

"Mr. Chairman, you have invited those who desire to continue the discussion which began on Saturday last I think you will be very interested to know we were to allow the course of Saturday to pass without some further observation on the part of those to whom you, Mr. Chairman, addressed your speech, and for this reason I shall venture to explain in a moment, I shall the first to take up the challenge.

"It is because that of all the Powers assembled here, we are almost certainly the most interested in the work of the Conference, which was about to open, or which indeed has been opened, that anything very dramatic had unfolded.

"And suddenly I became aware, as I suppose all present became aware, that they were passing not merely an eloquent and admirable speech, but a great historical event. It was led up to with such art.

"The transition seemed so natural that when the blow fell, when the great assembly of statesmen, of which we have now gone round and found an echo in every quarter of the civilized world, it came as a shock of profound surprise; it excited the sort of simplicity which we have when some wholly new event suddenly springs into view, and we feel that a new chapter in the history of world reconstruction had been warily opened.

"Mr. Chairman, the absolute simplicity of the procedure, the easy transition and the great dramatic climax were the highest art and the most perfect simplicity are very often, indeed very commonly, combined.

Britain Vitrally Interested
"Now, I would explain, if I was allowed, why I venture to rise first today to deal with the subject which is in all our hearts. As I have hinted, it is because the British Empire, and Great Britain, these two together, are more profoundly concerned with all that touches matters naval than it is possible for any other nation to be, and this not, believe me, for any reasons of ambition, not for any reasons drawn from history or tradition, but from the hard, brutal necessities of claims and obvious facts.

"There never has been in the history of the world a great empire constituted as the British Empire is. It is a fact no one can deny, to everybody whom I am addressing at the present moment, but has everybody whom I am addressing imaginatively conceived precisely what the situation of the British Empire is in this connection?

"Most of my audience are citizens of the United States. The United States stands solid, impregnable, self-sufficient, all its lines of communication protected, doubly protected, completely protected from any conceivable hostile attack.

"It is not merely that you are 110,000,000 of population; it is not the

Conference Adjourns Subject to Call of Chair After Momentous Meeting

By the Associated Press

Washington, Nov. 15.—In unison the spokesmen of Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan today accepted the American proposals for limitation of naval armament in "spirit and principle," making only reservations for suggesting modifications of detail.

In order Arthur J. Balfour, speaking for Great Britain; Baron Admiral Kato, speaking for Japan; Senator Schanzer, speaking for Italy, and M. Briand, speaking for France, rose in their places and praising in highest terms the plan and program suggested by the American Government gave the adherence of their Governments to the general terms of the proposals.

Secretary Hughes thanked the representatives of the Powers for their cordial expressions and declared the time had come to proceed with consideration of details of the proposed agreement. The question could now be studied, Mr. Hughes said, "with the assurance that there will come out of this conference an appropriate agreement to the end that there shall be no more offensive naval war."

The Conference adjourned at 12:44 P. M. to meet at the call of the chairman.

Balfour Receives Applause

Mr. Balfour during his address in behalf of Great Britain was greeted with applause. He declared that the naval reduction proposal made by Mr. Hughes on Saturday is the basis of the greatest reformation in armament and war preparation ever conceived or carried out by the courage and patriotism of statesmen.

He declared that November 12, when the plans were proposed, will prove to be an anniversary not merely to restore pre-war conditions, but to see that war conditions shall never again exist.

Telling of how his great Secretary Hughes' proposals, Mr. Balfour said he suddenly realized he was participating in "a great historical event."

He suggested modification of the Hughes program in the course of his address.

"Taking the battleships as a basis," said Mr. Balfour, "we think the proposals between the various countries are acceptable. We think the limitation of another type of submarine, which we think it should be accepted. We believe thoroughly it will be accepted."

Mr. Balfour suggested that the submarine tonnage might well be reduced and that possibly construction of large submarines should be prohibited.

The suggestions for changes in the proposals, Mr. Balfour said, and any plan would not affect the main structure" proposed by the United States, which, he said, he believed would be accepted.

Promises Full Co-Operation

When Mr. Balfour promised the "full, loyal and complete co-operation" of the British nation toward the general American plan the audience rose and applauded for a half minute.

"At first glance," said Mr. Balfour, "our experts think that too large an amount of tonnage has been permitted for submarines. They were the most abused agency of the war. The submarine

Lloyd George Cables Praise of Conference

Nothing could auger better for ultimate success of Conference. Please convey to both our most sincere congratulations."
